Hello [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting Metergy Solutions.

Your most recent invoices have been estimated invoices. An estimated invoice is issued when we are unable to obtain an actual read from the meter due to technical issues. An estimated invoice is used to keep monthly billing consistent to prevent invoices from piling up and to ensure the services are paid for. This estimate is usually based on the building average. You can see which reads are estimated based on the E found on the second page of your invoice.

Once we resolve the issue with estimated invoices and can obtain an actual read, we can issue a 'true up' invoice. This actual read will be compared to your most recent estimate and will allow us to rectify previous estimations. If we underestimated, then your additional electrical charges un-billed from previous periods would appear on the true up invoice. The opposite is also true, if we over-charged then your bill will be smaller or even 0 as we account for any electricity already paid.

Further assistance, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Regards,

Rachel

Metergy reports all payment history to the National Consumer Telecom and Utilities Exchange (NCTUE), a credit data exchange agency managed by Equifax. Please note that you must call or write to Metergy within thirty (30) days if you wish to dispute your payment history, otherwise Metergy will assume that you do not dispute the accuracy of the information provided. Unless otherwise required by law, interest will be charged on any overdue amount at a rate of 1.5% compounded monthly (19.56% per annum) until receipt of such overdue amount and all accrued interest. Please refer to our Conditions of Service for further details. Metergy is not the supplier of electricity, water, gas, and/or thermal energy to you or your building and, as such, is not required to collect and remit state and local sales tax on any electricity, water gas, and/or thermal charges. Any state and local sales tax amount shown on your bill is collected by Metergy on your building's behalf on a pass-through basis and does not constitute an amount that Metergy is collecting as sales tax for itself. Accordingly, Metergy is recovering, on behalf of your building, an amount equal to the sales tax that was payable by your building on any charges billed to you.

This submetered bill is from Metergy Solutions, which is not the regulated public utility. For more information on your historical usage please email us at customerservice@metergysolutions.com
